Volume 1 Issue 9

Greetings fellow Boomer Babes! Allison here: I finished packing last month and moved down to Texas where I am now unpacking all the boxes, trying to find room for everything. It's quite a challenge when you have to re-organize and re-think your storage choices when you were so used to the set up you had. But give me a month or two and hopefully everything will have a place. Have you recently downsized and moved to a smaller home? How did you decide what stays and what goes or make more storage where there is none? Let us know what you did.

Cheryll here: Yes, please tell us! I am down in South Carolina, but my home is still for sale in Ohio where my husband is. I found a job and had to start, so here I am. But once all the boxes I packed get here, I will have the same problem. We are cutting down the size of our home also. Although we have given bags of items away and thrown just as many in the garbage, I'm certain I'll find I have too much "stuff" and not enough room. How is it we simply can't permit ourselves to throw something away because it still in usable condition? Perhaps it's because our parents, who lived through the depression years, drilled into us the need to save everything. Perhaps something else. What do you think? Write and give us your thoughts.

This edition has some wonderful info and great news about "One Little Secret," Allison's just-released second Boomer-Lit novel, and how well it is being received. Read our guest writers' articles and be sure to visit their websites. Check out "In The News" and what one of our readers shares with us about her "Dream" come true in "Boomer Babes Speak Out." Send us your comments and feedback today to: editor@boomerbabesrock.com

4. Boomer Babes Speak Out

Breast cancer is not a stranger to me. While it hasn't physically affected me, it's affected those I love. Therefore, I've made it my mission to encourage women to make their health a priority and schedule an annual mammogram. I'm always shocked at the number of women who put it off until they suddenly realize it's been years since their last screening.

When, I had my first mammogram at forty, I decided to reward myself with a Godiva raspberry truffle and a little shopping. The next year I added coffee and invited friends. Last year we celebrated my mother in laws victory over breast cancer. Then, when a dear friend had a scare, we decided to celebrate her clean-bill-of-health with Godiva and Starbucks. We had several mini celebrations with friends and thought how fun it would be if we all did it together, so we came up with Breast Friends.

What is Breast Friends? It's a group of women celebrating friendship, femininity and good health by encouraging one another to get mammograms and perform breast self-examinations. Is there a special day? Not necessarily. We chose Oct 19th. You pick a day that works for your group. How? Grab as many friends as you can and get them to schedule their mammogram on the same day around the same time. Go out to breakfast, lunch, or dinner together before the screening. Then after the mammograms go out for Starbucks and Godiva chocolate. Follow up with monthly emails to remind each other to do self-examinations. Those who are too young for mamo's can be included in Breast Friends by completing their monthly self-examinations.

Start today - form a Breast Friends group with friends from your city. Reply in the comment section of my blog www.janparrish.blogspot.com when you form a BF club and tell us the day you've chosen. All group coordinators will be entered into a drawing to win a $10 Starbucks certificate on our Breast Friends day. Entry deadlines Oct 1st.

Celebration is the key. Take chocolate with you to pass out in the waiting room, bring coffee or Pepsi - just have fun. The point of BF is to take the fear out of getting a mammogram and to celebrate friendship, health and femininity. Join us won't you?

Be a BOOMER BABE WHO SPEAKS OUT! Perhaps you have something on your mind? What do YOU want to SPEAK OUT about? What bugs you to no end or irritates you beyond belief or grips your heart and squeezes it tight? What makes you so happy you could burst? Let us know, we want to share it with our readers. Send your thoughts to editor@boomerbabesrock.com and type I WANT TO SPEAK OUT in the subject line.

7. High Voltage Romance by Pam Farrell

Co-operate Kids!

We were at some friends' home for dinner, and they brought up our book, Red Hot Monogamy. The wife said, "Most women I know would like more red hot romance, but after the housework, the carpool, the homework, the laundry . . . sex is the last thing on my mind when my head finally hits the pillow." Then her husband chimed in, "Kids are the enemy of a great sex life!" We all laughed, then we proceeded to share a few innovative ideas to help this couple create more time for each other. If you are looking for ways to create more time together try a few of these tips. To get kids to co-operate with Red Hot Monogamy, try:

1. A Video Break! For Cartoon age kiddos, get a favorite video going (be sure to check the time--you might only have 30 min! For older kids: rent or buy a new video. Use a realistic line like, "Mom and Dad are taking some grown up time" "Mom and dad are going to take a nap." Or our favorite line is: "We are going to clean our room and can't be interrupted." (Then after sex, you better hurry and pick up your room!) For teens: give them free movie tickets so the house is all yours for about three hours!
2. Trading time off with your friends so that each of you couples get a few hours a week alone. You can create a code with your girlfriends, like, "I need to "clean the oven." This way you can talk about the topic and arrange childcare within earshot of little ones.
3. A wholesome distraction: Since we are pastors, we can get away recommending this: Send the kids to a youth group or Christian education activity. If this tip is used occasionally, your pastor won't mind because you will have a strong marriage and family and that makes for a strong church.
4. Taking a long lunch once a week on a school day. Block off from Noon til 2 or three. Write in the calendar: Appointment: R.H.M. (Your secretary won't know it stands for Red Hot Monogamy.)
5. Once a year, pay for an overnight camp for your children, or a day camp, and you and your spouse take a vacation day or week together while the kids are in great care. You might need to save up for it, but the payoff will be well worth it.

Fan the flame on your love by planning in a little time for the two of you. The kids will

8. Body, Mind & Spirit by Janet C. Maccaro, Ph.D., C.N.C.

We Are Citizens of Heaven

I have been receiving many e-mails from Christians lately who are filled with fear concerning their health. They seem to be too pre occupied with either their current or future health.

Your faith in God and education about your body is what is needed to arm you with the comfort and knowledge you need to stimulate and support your body especially during times of stress, poor eating, lack of sleep, and negative thinking. In addition, the renewing of your mind is imperative if you are to reverse negative thoughts that can destroy your health.

I recommend that you become educated on the subject of your body and take a measure of responsibility for your "temple." "My people are destroyed for a lack of knowledge" Hosea 4:6

DO YOUR PART FOR VIBRANT HEALTH

LACK of SLEEP: Regeneration takes place while you sleep. Sleep experts agree that while seven hours of sleep per night is the minimum amount needed for a properly functioning immune system, eight hours is still optimal.

CONTROL STRESS: One study showed that blood taken from widows and widowers who were in the grieving process had reduced natural killer cell activity. Stress and a depressed outlook can lower immunity. Prayer is especially effective in managing stress.

OBESITY: According to the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, eating a low fat diet may help boost the activity of your natural killer cells thereby enhancing your immune response.

POOR DIET: Consumption of refined sugar can interfere with immunity. According to the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, a study found that sugar slowed the ability of the immune system to eradicate, engulf, and consume alien material.

ELIMINATE ALCOHOL: It lowers immunity by inhibiting the ability of your white cells to react to infection

God made our bodies to produce health unless our interference is too great. Notice the self curing nature of many conditions such as colds, fevers, cuts, swelling, and bruises. These are prime examples of how the body always strives for health and healing unless we do something to stop the process.

Finally....If you find yourself too pre occupied with the health of your" earthly frame", take comfort in Philipians 3:20-21

With tears dribbling down, my heart stirred in amazement at the details revealed through technology. To my astonishment and to God's glory, medical advances now reveal details never seen before--one can literally peek at His miracle in the making.

Hence, following the various stages of the baby's development, I write letters to my granddaughter-in-the-making. I'd like to share the latest one with you:

Dearest little baby,

This month offers a bouquet of sweet events. Your parents visited the doctor and through a latest ultrasound 3-D procedure, they watched your every move. At one point, your daddy said you smiled at him, then stretched your tiny body and licked your arm. Your mommy saw you suck your thumb, and she said you even batted your eyelashes!

This Saturday, your mommy will see a pour-out of gifts at her first baby shower. And guess what! You'll be the featured star. Your daddy will have your movements and detailed images displayed on a screen for all of us to gaze in awe.

According to studies this 31-week of development, you're practicing gazing as well, have hair on your head, and toenails. Your brain is already capable of memory, learning, and processing sights and sounds.

I wonder what you think of your world so far? Did you smile when you sensed your mommy's relief when your daddy landed the job of his dreams in computer animation? He started his new position at the beginning of this month. And did you hear the singing and applause on Aug. 5th? Your daddy made the public statement that he chose to follow Christ and obey His word by taking the step to be baptized.

He and your mommy are committed to follow Christ. They're active in their church. A delight for me knowing they'll bring you up in the knowledge of the Lord. As Tests show your brain is developing rapidly, pray each cell will soak up wisdom drawn from His Word. And your heart will beat to the rhythm of His love.

Only a few weeks to go and you'll be seeing the light of the outside world. And you'll continue to take the steps God carefully and specifically ordained just for you. As He knit you together in your mommy's womb, He wove inside me the kind of love no writer has ever been able to express, no choir able to sing nor poet able to rhyme.

But precious baby, my love is but a speck of dust compare to the greatness of the love God whispers as His fingers mold your every cell.

Your grandma...

13. Meet Our Special Guest

Pastor Jane Evans of Paradise Community Church in Australia (www.paradise.asn.au) has just written a new book titled Raising Children Without Going Insane (Sept. 2007). Her book and ministry come with strong endorsements from Hillsong's Darlene Zschech, Dr. Myles Munroe, and Pastor Jentezen Franklin.

In her book, author, motivational speaker, minister, and mother, Jane Evans, shares priceless lessons learned from her life trying to juggle teenagers, toddlers and a full-time career. Shocked to discover she was pregnant again at age forty, Jane's teaching on parenting is gold!

Evans encourages parents to overcome feelings of inadequacy and urges ordinary moms and dads to understand that God has already given them the tools to raise their children with grace, patience and authority. Raising Children without going insane is an original, well thought-out book that parents will use in helping their children discover their unique gifts, cultivate their strengths, overcome their weaknesses and become infused with an unrelenting faith in God.

14. Until Next Month

This month marks many turning points in my life. I have a new job, in a new state. I will have a new home as soon as the old one sells (keep me in your prayers!) I am closer to one of my sons, but further away from the other and my husband will be retiring at the end of the month. I will certainly be glad when things settle down and a calm, tranquil, routine life begins to form. This is almost too much change to handle at one time. Exciting, but exhausting too! But it has always been our dream to move somewhere warm when he retired, so this is it, a dream come true!

Until next month...keep on dreaming, because DREAMS CAN COME TRUE!
